Malaysian oil and gas players will be able to leverage the international diversity at OGA to promote their capabilities and solutions at the SME Pavilion, OGSE Awards and MATRADE's flagship International Sourcing Programme (INSP).

As the national trade promotion agency, MATRADE is a regular stakeholder in OGA with INSP to facilitate one-to-one pre-arranged business meetings between Malaysian exporters and foreign companies aimed at paving new partnerships or to increase exports.

Since 1987, OGA has played a pivotal role in bringing together regional capabilities and practising professionals from all segments of the industry to tap business opportunities and network with each other and representatives from government and corporate sector.

"We are delighted to work with EIC and continue our collaboration with MPA, MOGSC, MPRC and MATRADE, on a single OGA platform. We are inviting key local stakeholders and national oil companies from the region to our EIC conference to deliberate and discuss what is the realistic approach for Asia in the efforts to achieve targets in net zero carbon emissions. There will also be excellent networking opportunities and business matching for Malaysian energy supply chain SMEs who are our local partners. As one of the largest trade associations for energy in the UK, EIC tracks USD13.5 trillion of global energy projects where 70% of the projects are for renewable energy," said Mr Azman Nasir, EIC Regional Director (Asia Pacific).

Last year, industry professionals returned in force to OGA when the show resumed face-to-face after a three-year Covid lapse, drawing a record 24,551 visitors with 55% attending for the first time.

Over half of the attendees cited their objective was to obtain market information and source for new products and technology. The largest group of professionals was from engineering, procurement and construction (EPC) followed next by maintenance and repair.
